Pisces

February 19th ~ March 20th

Pisces is the twelfth sign of the zodiac and is said to be the completion of the zodiac cycle. Basically, Pisces is the end of the journey that started with Aries.

Here's what I know about Pisces. They are pretty much the same as the elves from Middle Earth. Now, hear me out. I know a lot of you rolled your eyes at that. Some of you might have accidentally fallen over backward. Elves are ethereal, intuitive, wise, creative, and live in between worlds. For those of you who are still on the floor, I'm going to tie this together.

Every single Pisces I know has the uncanny ability to drop what I call wisdom bombs. It usually comes out of nowhere when you need it the most and when you are completely lost or your perspective is totally overwhelmed. There is a reason that Gandalf seeks council from Elrond. Even powerful wizards need a wisdom bomb every once in a while. They also are true empaths and can literally feel all the stuff. I think that is where things can go awry for Pisces sometimes. Think of how water flows and can seep into the tiniest of cracks and how it can absorb substances and dilute others. Well, imagine if that was you and your empathy was constantly seeping, diluting, and absorbing. I have met Pisces that struggle with this and they usually have that beatnik tortured soul thing going on. I like to think of it sort of like the Mirkwood elves. Still elves, still a Pisces but a little darker; maybe their fish are swimming in deeper waters?

We can argue that Pisces has learned from all the other signs how to live with their deep empathy, which helps them keep it from consuming them (even if it is difficult, see above). They are also intuitive the same way that birds fly south for the winter. It's just a fact of life.

My brother is a Pisces and every year we make New Year predictions. We write them down and look at them on the eve of the new year to see what came true. My brother's predictions are always global, about things that are societal and complex, and most of them come true. He has no idea how he does it. He'll just blurt stuff out and we write it down and then on New Year's Eve we give him the side-eye. He managed to predict the Covid-19 pandemic for 2020. It freaked us all out a little. But that is Pisces for you. His bird was just flying south for the winter.

Pisces also like to keep secrets; they are water signs after all. My daughter is a Pisces; she has always kept secrets, usually not horrible ones. Mostly, her secrets don't really make sense to me but I'm an air sign. I LOVE to talk about everything. That said, I probably have more grey hair than other moms who are raising earth signs, for example.

Anyway, I haven't mentioned creativity yet. You know how the elven cities of Middle Earth look, sort of like a wonder of the world. Well, that wouldn't be difficult for a Pisces to create. Their creativity sort of shoots out of their being without them realizing it. You won't find a Pisces in real life who isn't creative; it doesn't exist. Might as well just accept that now and move on.

They can see and create literal worlds in their heads, to the point that those worlds can become 100% real to them. This is because Neptune is their ruling planet and Neptune is all about dreams and illusion. This is a double-edged sword for our Pisces friends. On occasion, it can be difficult for them to keep the fantasy world and real world from intertwining. This is a gift and a curse, and probably why I had to create "monster" spray for my daughter to use at bedtime. We had to do a protection ritual outside of the house to keep the monsters out, hang protection charms in the windows, but it wasn't until she watched Harry Potter and I made a wand for her out of a cinnamon stick and taught her a spell to vanquish monsters that we all started sleeping through the night.

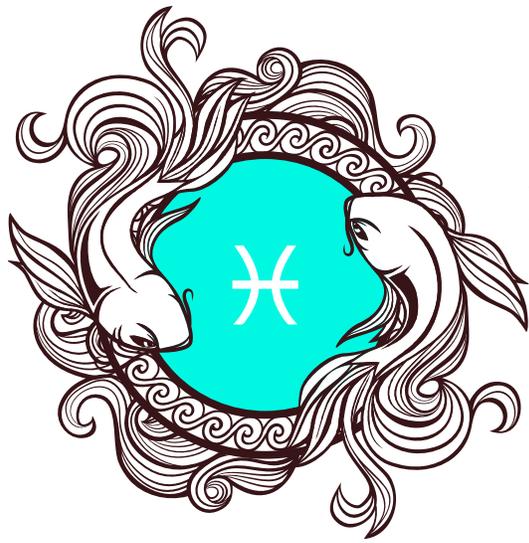

If you are lucky enough to be a Pisces, I think you should just embrace your inner elf. Let it shine while your feet barely touch the ground. We need your ethereal energy during these heavy times! It's not a coincidence that Pisces people can be found in high numbers in the creative arts. Their bird is just flying south for the winter!
