Aquarius

January 20th - February 18th

Aquarius is ruled by the planet Uranus, which gives this air sign all the extra bits. Let's take a moment and think about all the people we know who are Aquarians. I suspect that if we used Luna Lovegood as an adjective here it would be a pretty accurate way to describe them. Often times I am drawn to Aquarius people because they just ooze individualism. They always do things their own way, from the way they think to the way they adorn themselves. Having a conversation with an Aquarius is like opening a copy of Alice in Wonderland and falling down the rabbit hole. It's exhilarating, confusing, and addicting.

I had a roommate who was an Aquarius; she was amazing, lived life to its limits, and was one of the bravest people I've ever known. We could stay up all night talking about any number of random things. She was progressive and smart, taught me how to be a functioning adult, and was also one of the most mysterious people I've ever known. She was warm and caring while at the same time aloof and distant. I knew everything about her, yet I also knew nothing about her. Such is the way of the Aquarius. You can't help but love them and being just a tiny bit jealous of them at the same time. My daughter has an Aquarius moon; she is hilarious, smart, unique, and can slather on bright red eye shadow and no one bats an eye (it's gotta be some kind of sorcery.) She also keeps her emotions tucked away in those boxes that only someone like Hoodini can open. You'll have no idea what is wrong but the debris from the invisible tornado is a dead giveaway that something isn't right. C'est la vie, it's a pretty decent trade off to know and love an Aquarius.

Aquarians are associated with the symbol of the water-bearer, the figure who brings the waters of wisdom and healing for all humanity. They are eccentric and rebellious, independent, open-minded visionaries, idealistic, creative, original, often ahead of their time, and always the progressive humanitarian. Your Aquarius loved one is the family member who will go on and on during Thanksgiving Dinner about human rights and people starving in other countries. They are the moms who fight the sexist middle school dress codes and carry their babies through marches and protests, have a permanent serving station at the local soup kitchen, and never let anyone be a wallflower or underdog as long as they're around. They really are a gem in the zodiac of personalities and as long as you remember that an aloof Aquarius is just an overwhelmed Aquarius, you should be good to go.

This is the last air sign of the zodiac and being ruled by Uranus they can't help but go their own way. My best advice is to put flowers in your hair and skinny-dip in the healing waters alongside them. You won't be sorry.
